LOCAL NEWS

Do you have something you would like to include in our next newsletter? We are always keen to share information about local events and activities.

WEST END WILDFLOWER CORRIDOR

Bees and pollinators can go hungry when isolated in urban areas with little food, so with funding from Grow Wild, we will join two community gardens in the West End of Newcastle by planting wildflowers to link bee streets and communities.

The Time Exchange and friends will be planting wildflower areas in and around the Greening Wingrove Bike Garden, located in Nuns Moor Park, Arthur's Hill. Through a series of pop-up street events we will give free wildflowers and pots to enable neighbours to create bee streets to link up with Edible Elswick, located in the Elswick Park. Both parks are open to the public all year round.

Kicking off with a launch event at the Bike Garden on Saturday April 28th 2018 (time to be confirmed), we'll plant wildflowers, learn about the bees and creatures who depend on them, give seeds to take home and inspire people to transform their streets into bee streets.

If you would like to get involved with an event or would like your street to join the West End Wildflower Corridor, contact the Time Exchange.

Help in collecting the history and heritage of Spital Tongues with the Spitler Memory Box Project.

Spital Tongues Newcastle has changed dramatically over the last two hundred years.

Have you ever wondered what life was like from the 1800's onwards or what it was like to live or work there in the past?

Do you have a connection with Spital Tongues?

Do you have any memorabilia i.e. photos or stories which could be recorded, copied or used in our Memory box project to help others of all ages travel back in time?

People are invited - with the help of Tyne and Wear Archive and Museums Service, the Live Well Project and Chain Reaction, to join us at The Spitler Community Resource Centre on Morpeth Street, Spital Tongues NE2 4AS each Friday morning 10- 11am to help gather and record memories, search out fascinating stories, text, maps, photographs, audio, film, and objects which will fill a Memory Box. The project hopes to end with an exhibition in June alongside a guided history walk in the area.

Tea and Toast, coffee and cookies available on arrival each Friday. Just turn up.

But if you would require further information contact at Chain Reaction.

DO NOWT AND YOU GET NOWT!

Geoff Brown, 'The Local Bore, You can't Ignore,' writes: Since ranting about what are now being called by scientists, 'Our Plastic Oceans' in December, I've been angry, depressed but also given a little hope!

Although our seas are now becoming almost 'plasticated' and our rivers too, there are people trying to secure our very future on Earth. A recently published report, "Foresight for The Future of our Seas," commissioned by the government, expects the cost of polluted seas to rise to £2trillion a year by 2030, they also say it's time we 'cashed in' on our potential marine economy. One of its authors, Prof. Edward Hill of The National Oceanography Centre told me this week, "We're so ready to spend fortunes on trips to moons and Mars, yet so little is known about just what's down in our deep oceans. With another 9 billion people looking to the ocean for more food, it's our last frontier!"

I mentioned my anger at the government postponing a decision on taxing plastic cups at 25p to Prof. Hill and others but M.P.'s, some of them local, feel sure they'll not let the Government decide against it. One of them, Blaydon M.P., Liz Twist, told me, "Plastic waste can be turned into artworks and even wellington boots from that and chewing gum!" I spoke to Anna Bullus, of Gumdrops, on her plans to transform waste chewing gum into wellingtons and she told me, "The main make up of chewing gum is similar to plastic and I'm about to begin production of wellingtons from just that, recycled gum!"

I'd then a three way conversation between myself, round the world yachtswoman, Ellen MacArthur and retired deep sea diver, Richard O'Hara. Dame Ellen spoke of what she calls a 'circular economy,' where whatever we take from the planet we put back, perhaps in a different way and Richard reinforced what Prof. Hill had told me about the unknown resources our oceans offer. "It's an unexplored world down there, somewhere I spent most of my working life!"

I, as an urban idiot, who loves the sea, I tend to agree with all of them to a degree. I just think we should explore, without exploiting all our potential resources but simply get the balance right, by doing what's necessary first.

AN HOUR SHARED IS AN HOUR SPARED!

A GREAT DAY OUT!

We organised our first healthy walk with a group of women last week. Sunnie and Abi led the walk on a trip to Plessey Woods. Everyone had a great time and can't wait for the next one!

BIRDS ON YOUR DOORSTEP

Do you enjoy spending time in your local park?
Do you sometimes wonder what the birds that you see and hear are called?

Would you like to know more about what they eat and where they shelter?

By the end of this day school with tutor Keith Bowey you will know all about the birds in Nuns Moor Park, as well as understand what makes a park good for birds and how you can attract more birds to your park (and street).

Free lunch!

We are hoping to organise a Forest School crèche so people with children can attend. To register interest in the crèche contact ntodd@wea.org.uk

When: 07.04.18

Where: The Bike Garden, Nuns Moor Park, Wingrove, Newcastle NE4 5NU

How long: 1 session

Time: 10am - 3.00pm

A FOOL'S PHILOSOPHY!

As we forward our clocks for British Summertime, it makes me realise just how much time rules our lives. Is it not really just a unit of measurement? I'd never advocate a muddled world without arrangements and appointments, however!
